Why the Council was established

The interest by the United States business community towards the Republic of Cuba, 93 miles south of the United States, a nation of 11 million consumers, which would rank it the 7th largest state if the country were a part of the United States, surpassed the ability of ministries, enterprises, organizations, and institutions within the country to respond in a timely manner.

Often, information known within the Republic of Cuba and by business executives in other countries remains unknown to the United States business community. Lack of information and inaccurate information are two of the challenges which the United States business community must overcome in efforts to learn about the Republic of Cuba. To satisfy the demand for information, the U.S.-Cuba Trade and Economic Council was established in 1994.

Purpose

The U.S.-Cuba Trade and Economic Council's purpose is to provide an efficient and sustainable educational structure in which the United States business community may access accurate, consistent, and timely information and analysis on matters and issues of interest regarding United States-Republic of Cuba commercial, economic, and political relations.

The U.S.-Cuba Trade and Economic Council does not take positions with respect to United States-Republic of Cuba political relations.

The U.S.-Cuba Trade and Economic Council was the first business organization within the United States to have established relationships with and received the written cooperation of the Chamber of Commerce of the Republic of Cuba, the Ministry of Foreign Trade of the Republic of Cuba, the Ministry for Foreign Investment and Economic Cooperation of the Republic of Cuba, the Ministry of Tourism of the Republic of Cuba, the Ministry of Public Health of the Republic of Cuba, the Ministry of the Steel-Mechanical and Electronic Industry of the Republic of Cuba, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Cuba, and the National Assembly of People's Power of the Republic of Cuba.

Council Administration & Structure

The U.S.-Cuba Trade and Economic Council is a private, not-for-profit, membership-based corporation. Its activities are governed by a Board of Directors. Members of the Board of Directors are elected for two (2) year terms.

The U.S.-Cuba Trade and Economic Council does not believe appropriate for a director, officer, employee, or advisor of a not-for-profit organization to seek, provide, or direct revenue producing activity to an entity controlled or affiliated with a director, officer, or advisor of the organization. Relevant agencies of the United States government believe such activities inconsistent with not-for-profit purposes.
